HOPKINSVILLE, SEPT. 19, 1882

For Congress

We are authorized to announce
HON. JAS. F. CLAY, of Henderson county, as a candidate for Congress in this, the Second Congressional District of Kentucky, subject to the action of the Democratic District Convention.

We are authorized to announce
HON. THOS. S. PETTIT, of Daviess county, as a candidate for Congress in this, the Second Congressional District of Kentucky, sub-
District Convention.

In Union there is strength.
Pettit is a man of his word.
Pettit stood still rising.

Christian will do his duty, Hurrah for the Little Giant!

Pettit will carry Hopkinsville. Let the country precincts do their duty and victory is ours.

Brother Barnes is still preaching at Indianapolis and is meeting with better success than he had at Dayton.

Mr. Geo. Baker has withdrawn from the race for Congress in the Louisville District. This leaves Hon.
A. S. Willis without opposition in his own party.

No matter how popular a man may be there is almost always opposition to him in his own county from one cause or another. The Owensboro Post is opposed to Pettit while the Henderson News is in favor of Clay.

Nearly all of the papers in the First District will support the nomination of the Federal convention Oct. 3.
The Col. Telephone and Mayfield Democrat will support the independent candidate, Col. Turner, of Louisville.

Thos. A. Robertson of Lardie, is the Democratic nominee for Congress in the Fourth District. He is 35 years old and a bright young fellow. He received the nomination on the 19th bullet, over four competitors.

Fahnestick Young says there are seven marriageable young ladies in Madisonville to one young man and yet that they deliver goes from home to his courtship. It may be that he has exhausted all the local material.

The letter from Mr. Clay asking Mr. Pettit to meet him in his appointments referred to Union county and not Christian county. The Clay men are gratified at this. The letter was read by Mr. Clay at Longview and fully explained by Mr. Pettit. The agreement was made subsequently and Mr. Clay did not notify Mr.
Pettit of his appointments in Christian county. Will his friends deny this statement?

67 per cent of the River and Harbor Bill appropriations went to improve the rivers of the south. Mr.
Clay says he would have voted against it because it had objectionable features. He would jeopardize the lives and property of the whole people of the Mississippi valley by withholding appropriations to construct levees to prevent such overflows as the one last spring.

That Daviess county ex-Confederate, whom Mr. Clay alleged in his speech at Uniontown, Mr. Pettit refused to appoint as his deputy because he was a rebel, wrote to both Mr. Clay and Mr. Pettit, yesterday, saying he had never told Mr. Clay that he was so. Mr. Clay is suddenly developing into a great friend of the ex-Confederates, but he was in Canada during the war. One by one these petty charges are exploded. The truth is no man in the district has a clearer record than Mr. Pettit—Owensboro Messenger.

Mr. Wilbur F. Browder, of Russellville, is announced as a candidate for Attorney General. Now let Western and Southern Kentucky stand by their candidate as a unit and his election is assured. Marlow and Jefferson are behind the ticket and Logan should have the Attorney General as it is in a section that has heretofore been ignored. Mr. Brow-der is the most capable man announced as a candidate for the office to which he aspires.

The British fought a decisive battle last week and Arab's army was completely demolished; 2,000 men were killed and 3,000 captured. The English lost several hundred; Arab fled to Cairo and was captured and is in the hands of the conquerors.
His subordinates have surrendered also. Wolsey has added new lustre to his already brilliant reputation as a general. There is great rejoicing in both Egypt and England over the termination of the war.

The chairman of the Daviess county Democratic convention issued a call for a mass convention in accompaniment with the recommendation of the chairman of the District committee, but a majority of the committee of which he was chairman kicked against his action and called a primary election in Clay's interest. They were broken in this step by a few disgruntled politicians who are trying to make the impression that Pettit cannot carry his own county. Mr.
Pettit's friends promptly agreed to have a primary election, as the opposition to him in Daviess county is too insufficient to amount to anything.

Clay and Pettit.

Hon. Jas. F. Clay made five appointments to speak in this county last week. Hon. Thos. S. Pettit met him at three of them and lively times followed. Mr. Pettit was telegraphed for, but missed the train and could not therefore meet Mr. Clay at Fairview and Pembroke on Thursday. He however, put in an appearance at Longview Friday morning. About two dozen voters were present. Mr.
Pettit claimed that he had been treated unfairly and refused to accept a division of time, but told Mr. Clay to fill his appointments and then he would reply.

Mr. Clay spoke an hour, making an eloquent and carefully prepared speech in which he goaded Pettit by referring to him as a mere "reading clerk" and by concluding said if he should be beaten by such a man as Tom Pettit he would be tempted to leave the State. The only political question of importance upon which they differed was the River and Harbor Bill. Mr. Clay took the position that it was a steal and that he would oppose such a bill, an account of its minor and improper appropriations, even though every other member of Congress should advocate it. He would do so upon a matter of principle and if he could not get a Bill without evil he would reject it entirely and make no appropriations at all.

Mr. Pettit's position was directly opposite. He explained how a Bill was prepared by months of hard work in the Committee room and that it was often necessary to put small streams on the Bill in order to get appropriations for such rivers as actually needed improving. He would fight such things in the committee room and even after the Bill had been reported he would try to eliminate the evil features on the floor of Congress, but when it became evident that the Bill could not be passed without some objectionable features, he would not vote against a measure merely in the main and retard commerce on navigable streams by withholding appropriations that are just as necessary as appropriations to carry on the postal department or any department of the government.
This view is in our judgment correct.
If a Bill perfect in all respects can be passed then the Congressmen who looks to the best interests of his constituents and votes for the best Bill he can get does his whole duty conscientiously and faithfully. Mr. Pettit proved too much for his competitor on this point and the latter did not dissent to the subject. In his speech at Longview in the afternoon, Mr.
Pettit occupied an hour in replying to Mr. Clay. He began by charging him with violating a compact entered into not to speak anywhere till the 18th inst. He read certificates from Mr. R. M. Wilson and other prominent citizens of Uniontown who stated that they heard the agreement made. Mr. Clay disclaimed any intention of doing so but said, claiming that the agreement referred to Union county only, but Mr. Pettit insisted that it meant the whole district and said he had declined to speak several times to large crowds on account of the agreement. The discussion at this point reached a white heat and Mr. Pettit proved that he was abundantly able to successfully cope with his adversary on the stump. He explained his position on current political questions in a manner that showed that he knew what he was talking about and so convincing were his arguments and so well did he acquit himself that one of the most influential citizens of Longview who had been actively at work for Clay declared that he would support Pettit in the future. Mr. Clay replied in a speech of fifteen minutes. The friends of both candidates claimed the victory. A majority of the voters present were for Clay, but as it was not known that Pettit would be present it was claimed that his friends did not turn out.

In the afternoon, the candidates went to Lafayette. They found quite a crowd there and at 5:15 p. m. Mr.
Clay began to speak. His speech was in the main the same he had made at Longview except that he did not allude to the River and Harbor Bill. He turned, in the course of his speech, to Pettit and said, "Why Tom I would rather have you to travel with me than a first class messenger.
You will draw the crowd and when we speak and the people see and hear us both, I have no fear as to how they will decide between us." Mr.
Clay concluded by appealing to the voters of McKenzie's own section to do the graceful thing by voting for his opponent, defeated four years ago.

He spoke till 6:30, leaving Pettit only about thirty minutes to reply.
Pettit made the same charges he did at Longview, dwelt at some length on Mr. Clay's egoism, to the amusement of the crowd, touched upon all important political issues, and called on the voters to support the friend of McKenzie instead of a man who had been, disgraced and insulted him.
Mr. Pettit had to stop before his speech was half done but he made a very favorable impression and convinced the people that he was the equal of Mr. Clay in debate and only wanted a little more experience to be superior to him. He is a good speaker, a fine mixer, an able debater and a man who would reflect credit upon his district and himself and prove to be an indefatigable worker and a useful member.

The two gentlemen spoke at Crofton Saturday, but were not present.
They have gone to Union this week where they will remain till the convention is held. Both of them claim that county and this one and it is impossible to predict how the race will end.

Mr. Clay will lose his case to be tried before the Pettit jury next Friday.

Vote for the man who has supported Christian county's candidates.
Vote for Pettit.

Go to the polls at 2 o'clock Friday and vote for Pettit, a man who never called Jim McKenzie a d--d liar.

Maline went Republican last week by a large majority. Vermont went Republican by a majority 6000 less than in 1880.

Mr. Pettit has succeeded at everything he ever undertook and is a practical business man. Vote for him Friday.

Vote for Pettit, the friend and supporter of McKenzie and Galles, not to take revenge upon an enemy, but to reward a friend.

This is no time for milk and elder business. Mr. Clay's friends are a ve-lily at work and Pettit men should take a bold stand and go in to win.

Christian county can never expect any favors from Henderson. Then why should she stultify herself by turning her back upon friends to favor an enemy?

McKenzie made three speeches during his three terms and yet he made the best Congressman ever elected in this district. Work, not oratory and poetry, is what we want.

Pettit is not afflicted with a diarrhea of words and a constipation of ideas. He deals in plain facts, expresses them in plain terms and is a foreboding talker and an energetic worker.

We don't want to send a man to Congress to pop up with a speech on every question. We want a man who will go into committee rooms and work for his people. Pettit is that man.

J. Smith Hurt, of Bath, has been nominated for Congress by the Democrats of the Ninth District. A nomination is equivalent to an election. W. W. Culbertson is his Republican opponent.

Henderson county's vote would have nominated Sam Galles and yet it was given to Hewitt the candidate of a different section of the State.
That's the way Henderson has stood by Christian county men.

The Stier Route trials which ended last week resulted in the conviction of Herold and Miner and the acquittal of Peck and Turner. The jury failed to agree in the cases of J. W.
Dorsey, S. W. Dorsey, Brady and Vatt.

The following cards were read by Mr. Pettit in his speeches last week as proof that Mr. Clay violated a compact entered into, not to speak last week:

TO WHOM IT MAY CONCERN.
On Saturday night, last, after the Congressional debate I heard Mr.
Clay inquire of Mr. Pettit in front of the European Hotel, in Uniontown, when and where the next speeches should be made. Mr. Pettit's reply was, "you have my vote of acceptance to appointments; you can make such as you desire and I will meet you at them; if other engagements do not conflict." Mr. Clay then replied, "Well we will have no discussion an-til Monday week, at Morganfield."

In Uniontown, Ky., last Saturday night after the speaking between Mr.
Pettit and Mr. Clay I heard a conversation between them in front of the European Hotel in which Clay asked Mr. Pettit, "Shall we make any more speeches now?" and Mr. Pettit said, "as I told you before, make your appointments and I will meet you." Mr. Clay then said, "we will have no more speaking till Monday."

DAN'S DETERMINATION.
Unwritten History of the K. P. A.

"No sir, I will not."
These words were uttered one starry night in the leafy month of June in the year 1880, as the members of the Kentucky Press Association were strolling down the Ohio River, returning on board a magnificent boat from a visit to the mountainous regions of West Virginia. The meeting with its pleasures was over and the happy gang were enroute from Huntington to Ashland to disperse to their several homes. In almost every nook and corner of the boat could be seen a loving couple, each beading down to catch the whispered words that fell from the other's lips. Upon the top of the proud vessel which was surging through the muddy waters of the Ohio, sat a young couple busily engaged in counting the moon, which was just about half full, like some of the parasites who were dozing their way as members of the Press Association. We will pause a moment to take a glance at this pair.
The youth was Apollo-like in his beauty. His raven locks clustered around a classic brow and his curled moustache was just too lovely and suave for anything. He was a susceptible youth and when a pretty girl piped him a smile it invariably set his heart to fluttering like a gosling with its foot in a turtle's mouth. He had been the constant attendant of the young ladies in the crowd and especially of the little bright eyed lassie by his side. She was the sun around which he like a planet revoled, and on this particular night the planet had reached its perihelion.

The reader must not think we are writing our hero's obituary, for our language is only figurative. But to return to the girl. She was a petite, graceful, bright faced little lumina of sweetness, whose name it is not necessary to give. She had played sad travels with the hearts of more than one of the boys and about the first sight who was captivated by her charms was Dan O'Sullivan at that time on the howling Green Intelligencer, but now on the Courier Journal staff. He loved, he adored, he o-shipped, he idolized her and she had shown a decided preference for Dan.
In fact it was pretty generally understood that they were mutually "mashed." No wonder they had sought the top of the boat. It was the last opportunity they would have to hold sweet communion with each other. There they had repaired in a gang to themselves and while the moon was lit by the lux of the moon, they had been wrapped, for an hour, in the sweet solitude of their own loving thoughts.
The distant lights of Ashland were visible in the darkness ahead and Dan grew eloquent as he realized that in a few moments the boat would land and the parting must take place. He spoke of the sad thoughts that welled up in his heart, at the near prospect of an indefinite separation. He assured her again and again that the picture he had in his pocket was his cousin's and that his whole heart was given to her whose hand was resting in his own. He raised his eyes toward the starlit heavens, while the blue smoke from his paper cigarette curled about his head, and vowed that he would never forget her. It was at this supreme moment when the whistle had sounded and the boat was heading toward the wharf, that Dan turned to the fair creature by his side and murmured in accents of beseeching pathos:

"Darling kiss me ere we part." It was at this point that the little heartily uttered the words quoted above.

Rising to her feet and pointing to the cigarette which Dan held between his fingers, she repeated:
"No sir, I will not, I will not kiss a man who smokes paper cigarettes."

Dan's heart sank within him, but he quickly realized that tempo was rapidly fugitive and that whatever was done must be done quickly.

Another moment and a lighted cigarette descended and was lost in the turbid waves below, and in tremulous tones Dan pleaded:
"Just once, and I'll swear by the stars in the heavens above us I will never smoke another cigarette."

The boat touched the wharf and as the girl stepped off Dan whispered, "I will always keep my promise," and never since has he been known to smoke a cigarette. She must have compelled with his request.

SELLS BROTHERS.
Great Three-Ring Exhibition. Under the Six Largest Tents Ever Erected. Coming in a Few Days.

This extraordinary combination of Six European Railroad Shows, and whose announcements are causing the public to await its coming in anxious expectation, will positively reach Hopkinsville, Friday, Sept. 29. The single fact that this Colossal Combination requires four more tents than any other existing show, will bear irrefutable testimony to its comparative immensity, and to the reflecting mind comes the answer—How can a combination so vast, and one requiring for its daily expenditure, such a necessarily enormous outlay of money, overtake enough money at its doors to make its financial success a certainty? We give it up! But from the nerve its plucky managers evince in assembling and putting before the people a show of such unprecedented magnitude, it would seem that they are strong in the belief that there is no limit to public patronage, when features are piled on features and novel attractions are studied in such astounding proportions, as the union of their various popular amusement ventures have enabled them to accomplish.

Their entertainment is, from necessity, a three-ring show; for the fact must be patent to everybody, that they could never crowd their many acts into a single ring during the limited hours devoted to performance; were they to do so it would require nine hours, instead of three, in which to give their exhibition.

which we claim has no equal for lightness of draft, durability, and as a har-
